

Daniel Alpert, Dylan Farrell, Patrick Kelley

Let's say that you have always had a secret crush on a friend or classmate, but you are too nervous to tell them for fear of rejection. You may never know that they may feel the same about you. That's where we come in.

Our project is called VeriTinder. As we like to say, it is the largest free match making website for Harvard (and other) students. Essentially, it is a match making website that sets up a blind date (giving a day, time, and location) with your match. The project can be found on the Internet at www.veritinder.com.

To begin, navigate to www.veritinder.com. You will be directed to a login page, but since you don't have an account yet you will need to click the "register" link below. If for some reason you already have an account, feel free to simply log in.

Upon clicking register, you will be asked for your first and last name. Enter the name that your friends know you by. For example, if your first name is Alexander, but everyone calls you Alex, enter Alex as your first name. You will also be asked for your email and a confirmation. Include a real, functioning email address! Lastly you will be asked for a password and a confirmation.

After registering you will be directed to a page asking for your secret crushes. You may add as few as one crush or as many as three. Upon submitting, you will be directed to a page asking for the times you are available. As it says on the website, be liberal with the times you say you are available so that you will have a time to meet your date if you ultimately get matched.

Once you have submitted the times you are available, you will be brought to your portfolio. It will display your crushes and your available hours. You can decide to update your crushes or update your times if things have changed. Once you have reached this page, you are free to click "log out" and log out. You have done your job.

For anonymity's sake, we will not tell you if you don't have a match. But, let's say you do have a match. Someone that you listed as a crush has listed you as a crush, too. In this case, you will be sent an email giving you a time and day that both of you indicated as free and a location for your meeting (no email will be sent if you do not have a match yet). The meeting location is based on the time of day your meeting is at (breakfast, lunch, dinner). We won't tell you which crush you matched with—you have to go to find out!

The best way to test our website is to make at least two accounts that list each other as one of their crushes. Coordinate the times to have at least one hour slot overlapping (although if there are no overlapping times, you will be emailed to enter new times that you are available).